Acquia Creek taken Possession of—Fears and Speculations as to the Whereabouts of Stonewall Jackson.

As the first step towards this "change of basis" the Yankees have taken possession and placed under guard the point on the Potomac (the terminus of the railroad) known as Acquia Creek. A letter from there says:

There were no rebel forces in the vicinity of Acquia Creek, and quiet possession has been taken by our engineer corps under the protection of a gunboat. Already the Melly Baker, an old Peninsula acquaintance, is on the way from Washington to the Creek.

Stonewall Jackson's force is reported to have removed up the Valley to Manassas and Chester Gaps. The change of basis and the new direction in which the army is advancing renders his presence a matter of secondary importance. He cannot hope now to sweep through some of the passes of the Blue Ridge into the rear of the army, and destroy or capture its trains, inasmuch as its basis of supplies will be from Aquia Creek and not from Washington, and to reach the former point he would have to traverse the whole country in front of Washington for the distance of a hundred miles.

The opinion now is, that if Jackson is in the Valley with any such force as represented, that General Lee, as soon as he learns of Burnside's movements, will recall him, and with his whole force fall back to Richmond.

The salt works in Clarke county, Ala., under the direction of the State authorities, are now turning out one thousand bushels per day.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

If any of our friends desire to pay what they owe to either of the firms of Brown, Tate & Co., Brown & Stitt, or Brown, Stitt & Co., they will please call on Dr. E. Nye Hutchison who I leave as my agent in my absence.

The Blockade.

An English authority says: "In regulating the respective privileges of neutrals and the beligerent, it has generally been held as a fundamental principle that those rights, by the exercise of which less benefit would accrue to one party than detriment to the other, should be abandoned and in all cases where the rights of war happen to come into collision, the application of this rule will decide which of the two parties shall yield to the other. Thus the neutral State is debarred from carrying on any trade with either party in warlike stores; to refrain, for a time, from trading with a State in warlike stores; to refrain, for a time, from trading with a State in warlike stores can, at most impose but a trifling inconvenience on a neutral power, whilst the continuance of such a trade might result in the destruction of the beligerent. On the other hand, the neutral enjoys the most unlimited freedom of trade in all other articles with either of the powers at war; and though by means of this intercourse they may both be furnished with the means of protracting the war, this is an incidental consequence of the trade, which is in its character pacific, and which could not, with and regard to equity, be sacrificed to the remote convenience of a beligerent."

"The object of the blockade is to reduce the inhabitants of the blockaded town to such straits that they shall be forced to surrender, and hence the legality of every blockade, excebt to capture, has been questioned."

Tried by these national rules, of what legal force is Lincoln's blockade—which is greater, the injury to European trade or Lincoln's benefit by it? Indeed, it would be very easily proved that the injury to the United States has been greater than any advantage derived from it.

Again, is the object of the biockade to capture all the coasts blockaded? Such is not even pretended.

And again. By English decision ablock ade broken in one of its lines is broken in the whole—a rule designated to compel the belligerent to undertake to blockade more than he can effectually accomplish. In how many cases has Lincoln's blockade been broken since June, 1861?

And yet. European nations, professing to be neutral, have respected the blockade from the Chesapeake to the Rio Grande, and have permitted their own ports to be more than half blockaded in order that the restrictions on our commerce may be more perfect.

Do these facts arise from fear or from favor to Lincolndom? Surely not from fear, for it is impossible, after the humiliating submission in the Trent affair, that Great Britain or any other respective power could fear such a people, already at war, with their equals in power, as results have shown. Hence we must conclude that it is from favor, the ground of which can be found only in anti-slavery ideas, whilst Lincolnites, smarting under their conscious disgrace in the eyes of the world, reciprocate their favor with the vilest threats and abuse.

Will not the President withdraw our Commissioners from Europe, and promptly ignore all foreign consuls accredited only to our enemies, and assert our dignity as a Nation, whether they recognize us or not.—Savannah News.

An Inadmissable Proposition.

We undrstand that a prominent citizen of Memphis has recently crossed the lines of both armies, bearing a proposition from the Federal commander in that city to Lieutenant-General Pemberton, looking to an unobstructed navigation of the Mississippi by the freighting and passenger boats of the enemy. The consideration tendered for this privilege is that the families of Southern men in Memphis are not to be disturbed by the authorities. The privileged boats are to be distinguished by a white flag in the daytime and a white light at night; the war and Government vessels to carry red signals. The former are to be undisturbed—the later to run the chances of war.

We know we express the sentiment of the true friends of the South, in Memphis and out of it, when we enter a solemn protest against the consideration of such a proposition by our authorities, even for a moment. The man or men who could seriously entertain it should and would be just objects of suspicion, and an acquiescence would consign the parties to all the infamy that attaches to the traitor who barters his country for its enemy's gold. —Grenada Appeal, 17th inst.

FROM EASTERN CAROLINA.—Persons from the town of Beaufort in the last few days are of the impression that the force at Newbern is between 15,000 and 25,000 men. Sure it is reinforcing has been going on there, and a movement may be expected at an early day. We hope that our forces may be prepared to check any movement the enemy my make. We are apprised of movements of our forces in the eastern part of the State which we do not feel at liberty to make public, but we may state that our military authorities in that section seem to be vigilant and active.—Newbern Progress.

Election of Solicitors.

A. S. Merrimon, of Buncombe, (says the State Journal) was elected Solicitor for the 7th circuit, and Jesse J. Yeates, of Hertford, Solicitor for the 1st circuit, on Saturday last. Verily Whiggery is in much favor amongst the "Conservatives."

French Coffee House.

Our friends who may visit Columbia will find the above establishment, as appears by notice in another column, on main street, nearly opposite the Prince of Landlords, (Mr. Nickerson,) formerly "mine host" of the Mills House in Charleston. We learn through gentlemen who have visited the French Coffee House that its arrangements are admirable, the servants cleanly and attentive and the larder and culinary departments are supplied, the former with the best the country can afford and the latter with the most experienced and prompt and cleanly.

Those who like to enjoy a feast of good things, such as oysters, fish, crabs, shrimps, game and excellent coffee, all served up in pure French style will not fail to visit the French Coffee House when in Columbia.

We are more than half inclined to go down to the French and to see our old friend TOM NICKERSON, whose House, accommodations and edibles as well as his soul and body are all that an honest man or an epicure would desire—"May he live a thousand years and his shadow never grow less."

WILMINGTON.—A deserter from Newbern to our lines brings information that the Lincolnites are concentrating a force there—that they have already fifteen thousand, and that as soon as they complete their arrangements, their destination is Wilmington. That Wilmington is to be an early point of attack, is, we think, the opinion of our Confederate authorities.

We had a splendid frost on Saturday and Sunday nights, (says the Wilmington Journal,) and the atmosphere is really wholesome this forenoon. Gen. Yallow Jack is no more—he has done all the mischief in his power, and has finally yielded to his fate, though we must say he died hard—the fate of most sinners.

All we, the people of town, now want, is for our country friends to have some mercy on us, and bring in their produce, such as pork, beef, eggs, butter, poultry, flour, meal, cabbages, &c., for the inner man, and wood to keep us warm. We would also suggest to the owners of such articles, to have some little conscience, and the buyers some sensible discretion as to prices. Make a note of this—dealers and consumers.

"Food was not only scarce, but indifferent in quality. until we hung a few contractors, when the beef market began to improve amazingly."—Napier's History of the Peninsular War.

The indelible warnings of history teach us that it is as essential in time of war to overpower and cast out those domestic enemies, who assail a people from within, as it is to defeat the invader, who comes from abroad, and assails the nation from without. There are in every country and community a class of men who have nothing to gain from the ordinary routine of peace, but who may and do prosper above all others in times of disturbance. Such men are alive to every chance; they miss no occasion whereby their pockets may be enriched at the cost of their neighbors; and nothing pleases them so much as that which excites a universal fear and foreboding. Thus the approach, or apprehension of a famine in the land; the total lack of some necessary article of daily comfort, even of daily existence; in sickness the want of medicines; in winter the want of fuel, of clothing, of shoes and stockings, sends a thrill of pleasure through their hollow bosoms, which sets all the brazen chords of cupidity and cruelty in motion.

Prosperity in time of war, especially in time of revolution, is a bad index to any man's character; for he who can grow sleek and fat whilst all around him dwindles and grows slim; who can add to his wealth when most men are losing their all, must, in nine cases out of ten, be the recipient of illegitimate gain. Nothing is truer than that war is the last of all seasons for honest men to thrive. Honest men are usually brave men, and brave men generally go out and fight. They have as little opportunity as inclination to enter the ranks of those who, instead of struggling for their country, are engaged in the heated conflict for the "loaves and fishes." The miser, whose blood has never known the "purple of the wine of life," the usurer and the thief outright, are the men who make fortunes out of the desolation of war, just as only the carrion crow is gorged off the sickening debris of the battle-field.

Everybody is engaged in a crusade against the speculators. But what is everybody's business, according to an old saying, is nobody's ken. The Government and the authorities are the parties to take the matter in hand; and were they to carry out on an extended scale the precedent of the British officials, quoted by Napier, in his "History of the Peninsular War," we should see that not only the "beef market," but every other market, would improve amazingly.—Chattanooga Rebel.

From Chattanooga.

Correspondence of the Bulletin.]

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. Nov. 21.

DEAR SIR: This little city is torn to pieces by the war. In times gone by, it boasted a fine hotel for the wayfaring traveler, and numerous stores and shops for the benefit of its citizens; but now the Crutcher House, shattered by cannon balls and shell, has been appropriated to hospital purposes, and most of the stores are closed and the dwellings either vacated or occupied by the military authorities. In a word, it bears all the marks of grim war. Between one thousand sick in the hospitals and on the streets, returning furloughed soldiers awaiting transportation to their regiments, as they crowd the public places; the hurrying to and fro of government officials (of which their name is legion at this post,) to say nothing of the broken fences and neglected dwellings and dirty streets and horrid hotels—all tell that war is no idle play, but a fearful, mournful reality.

But to the news. Gen. Bragg with his whole army and a large portion of Gen. Kirby Smith's are near Murfreesboro', and are ready for a battle. The enemy, as you know, has been largely reinforced at Nashville and is moving down upon our forces. Gens. Forrest and Morgan have withdrawn from Lavergne (which is 16 miles this side of Nashville) and fallen back to Murfreesboro', 32 miles south-east of Nashville.—At this point and at Tullahoma (30 miles this side of Murfreesboro' and hence 62 miles from Nashville) are the locations occupied by our troops under Bragg. At the latter position, however, I feel confident the great battle of the West is to be fought. Bragg will hardly make battle at Murfreesboro', a place illy adapted to successful defence or strategy, while Tullahoma is the best point on the table land west of the Cumberland Mountains, having these mountains ranging and spreading out on the right and a river flowing on the left hand. Here are the heaviest columns of our forces. And it is therefore altogether probable the General commanding will fall back to this place for the great battle.—The natural advantages are so great that we can overwhelm the enemy with half his numbers. So if you hear of the retreat to this point congratulate your readers on a victory almost certain. But if the great battle is fought on an open field with no natural assistances, I fear the result.—While our columns are very heavy, and in fine condition, yet so great have been the reinforcements of the enemy, that our numbers are far inferior to those of the foe. And should we fail in this forthcoming engagement, we will lose not only the whole of Middle Tennessee but all of North Alabama, and that for the whole winter. On the other hand, should we succeed, Nashville will be occupied by our forces and the whole of Middle Tennessee and Southern Kentucky will return again to the arms of their friends and brethren, which may the Lord in mercy grant.

The news this evening is ominous.—Two hundred and fifty sick have been sent here this afternoon from Murfreesboro' and Tullahoma, evidently to clear the field for operations; and this morning there was brisk skirmishing in the neighborhood of the former place. In military circles here there exists the universal belief the great battle of the West will be fought, perhaps before this week ends. Deo volente, I expect to leave for Huntsville, Ala., in the morning, concerning the Yankee occupation of which I may give you some account on my return.

I am writing in the office of Dr. Stout, the Surgeon of the post, and with a crowd about me and the voices of anxious tongues buzzing in my ears, it is not possible that I should write with any degree of interest. But good luck gave me a seat at his table and a lodging in his house; and by way of gratitude, I felt that I must jot down a few notes for those interested in Western affairs. Yours, &c.,. G. M. E.

Somewhat Rich.

We find the following in the Columbus, (Ga.,) Sun, of the 19th. We presume that some of the names will be recognized by our citizens:—

A soldier in the army, formerly a well known citizen of this place, writes to a friend, enclosing the following document from the New York Herald of the 24th ultimo:

UNION WAR MEETING!

Under the auspices of Citizens from the Slave States.

The Union loving citizens of the City of New York, irrespective of party, are invited to meet the undersigned, citizens of States now in insurrection against the Federal Government at the Cooper Institute, on Saturday evening, October 25, 1862, for the purpose of giving an emphatic endorsement to the efforts now being made by the constituted authorities of the land to crush this cruel and proscriptive rebellion.

Col. And. Jackson Hamilton, of Texas,
Hon. Phillip Frazier, of Florida,
Rev. A Basserman, of Virginia,
Calvin L Robinson, of Florida, and
Hon. L D Stickney, of Florida,

Will certainly address the meeting.

John G Winter, Esq., of Georgia,
Rev. Mr. Carter, of Tennessee, and
Gen. Prentiss, of Illinois, late a prisoner in the hands of the rebels, are expected to be present and address the meeting.

Phillip Frazier, of Florida,
J. C. Clapp, of Florida,
John S Sammis, of Florida.
Calvin L Robinson, of Florida,
L D Stickney, of Florida,
Pasan Moody, of Florida,
E F Parker, of Florida,
Joseph Remington, of Florida,
J S Dugga, of Florida,
C H Blood, of Florida,
E C Howe, of Florida,
J L Hathaway, of North Carolina,
[Wilmington.]
W A G, North Caroiina. [Gwyer, of Wilmington, well known in the State.]
W K Jones, of North Carolina,
J C Winslow, of North Carolina,
John Dibble, of North Carolina,
John G Winter, of Georgia,
James Meader, of Georgia,
J N Reid, of South Carolina,
Walter S Carr, of South Carolina,
H T Campbell, of Tennessee,
Abboil Smith, of Tennessee,
A Basserman, of Virginia,
And one hundred others.

To the names of those who are known in Wilmington and the State, we make a note in brackets, to that effect. We wish them to be particularly marked. They are all Northern men, who owe whatever they may be worth to the South, except, J. C. W., and we don't know that he is worth anything.

[Wilmington Journal.

A COMPLIMENT TO LIVERPOOL.—The Northern papers and their European correspondents, referring to the naval preparations of the "rebels," remark:

But it is the Liverpool Southern Association that the rebels most largely owe whatever of credit and resources they possess in England. Liverpool is bitterly and almost unanimously rebel in its sympathies, and throughout Great Britain this pestilent seaport has exerted a wide and earnest influence against us. We are not likely to forget.

A fact concerning the Alabama deserves to be stated. The American Consul at Liverpool seems to have made every effort to persuade the British authorities to prevent her from leaving port on a cruise which all men knew was to be piratical. The Government at last consented to interfere, and the day after the Alabama had sailed, issued an order re-training her from going to sea.

It is evident, from such facts as the above, which are important, and come to us well authenticated, that the rebels have no lack of money or credit in England.—Probably a considerable part of the Cotton hypothecaten to the rebel Government, is pledged in some way to English capitalists as security for advances, and they in turn are secured by instrances at an extravagant premium, but with margin enough to make themselves good.

TRIAL OF MAJOR-GENERAL VAN DORN.—The army correspondent of the Mobile Advertiser and Register, writing from Abeville, Miss., November 21, says:

The Court of Inquiry into the charges preferred by General Bowen against Major-General Van Dorn is in session, but the proceedings thus far have been kept carefully from leakage. I learn from a very well informed officer that Van Dorn's conduct will, by this trial, be greatly relieved, and his attacks upon Corinth, upon the investigation, will be found to be less discreditable to him than has generally been supposed. A great share of the blame will be found to rest upon a General commanding a division in Price's corps, who, by a disastrous delay of four or five hours, changed the whole complexion of the conflict. It has been such a freely canvassed matter that it will be no harm to state that this General was rendered incapable to command by narcotic stimulants. At 5 o'clock in the morning he was ordered to advance, but at eight he had made no move, when he reported in person to the commanding General, and having been found unfit to discharge the terribly important duties, his troops were placed under General Greer. The investigation, Van Dorn's friends appear to think, will clear him from all blame of the disaster.

Texas News.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 23.—Houston, Texas papers of the 5th, contain details of the bombardment of Port Lavacca by the enemy's fleet on the 1st November. The Abolitionists pemanded the surrender of the town, and on refusal they gave one hour and a half, for the removal of non-combatants and then commenced shelling. Our battery replied, but the range of our guns was insufficient. After some hours ineffectual bombardment the fleet withdrew, having battered the town considerably, but nobody was hurt. Our flag was still flying at last accounts.

Run the Blockade.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Nov. 24.

A dispatch from Fort Fisher, to-day, says the schooner Flashaway, Capt. Sabestian, 11 days from Nassau, with 540 sacks of salt, has arrived safely.

From New Orleans.

PORT HUDSON, Miss., Nov. 24.

A gentleman has arrived at this place who just ran the blockade from New Orleans. He says that Farragutt's fleet, comprising thirty vessels, reached New Orleans on the 10th inst., supposed to be the fleet out at Pensacola. No reinforcements had arrived. This information is credited here. The Federal gunboat Essex is still quietly anchored off Baton Rouge.
